About me

My biggest passion is web design & development. I made my first website when I was 12 using basic HTML and CSS, made a forum when I was 17 using Simple Machines Forum and started making websites for people soon after. By knowing both Multimedia and Computer science I am able to do both the front-end and back-end.

In 2022 I started my own cosmetics company selling a sort of skin care oil that very few people manufacture in the world. I found a hole in the market and saw the opportunity to fill it. In a little more than a month I developed a webstore and started production with the help of two of my friends.

I am also very proficient in coding and developing and I'm very good at finding both practical and creative ways to solve problems. I continue to seek out new coding challenges in my free time so I can continue to improve in this highly competitive field.

My hobbies are playing the bass guitar and building model kits. They are a creative outlet for me to clear my head.
